Order routing can prove a complicated process. And the bigger your business grows, the more complex this task can become. With Onport, scaling your business is simple, because processes such as order routing are automated and managed for you.

Onport imports orders directly from your store. From there, Onport will automatically split orders into three main categories: in-house, dropship and 3PL. Then, the orders will be sent over to your own warehouse teams and those of your vendors.

If an item is to be drop shipped, vendors have the option of shipping via the Onport white labels dropship portal, or having the items shipped straight from their store. It's as easy as that.

So, no matter how many different orders you have coming in at any one time, you'll never find yourself overwhelmed by the process of order routing. With Onport, you can sit back and relax, safe in the knowledge that your orders have been sent where they need to go, and are being processed, without you having to lift a finger!
